Obama and the Muslim Agenda

The clear agenda of the Obama administration to isolate Israel in deference to Arab demands reminded me of a testimony I heard in a church in Washington State in 1998. A Christian sailor, today the pastor of that church, saved his ship in an act of great heroism. In return for this, he was recommended for promotion to an officer's course. But first, he had to pass a "loyalty" test. The question was: "What would you do if you were captain of this ship and ordered by Washington DC to launch a nuclear strike on Tel Aviv?"

The sailor shrugged and laughed."Why are you laughing?" asked the captain. His answer was: "First, I am a Christian. God promised that Israel would never be destroyed. Second, I wouldn't want to be on that ship because God would destroy that ship and all on board." The captain asked the sailor what he was doing in the US Navy. How could a man holding these Christian beliefs follow orders from Washington?

We are not talking about the Russian, Turkish or Arab navies, but rather the navy of the so-called greatest Christian nation on earth, the United States of America.

Indeed, Presidents Jimmy Carter, George H.W. Bush (Sr.), Bill Clinton and George W. Bush were also subservient to the Arab agenda, under the guise of the "land for peace formula." Even George W. Bush, who is widely regarded as one of the best friends Israel ever had in the White House, coined the phrase: "A Palestinian state in 2008."

But worse than a so-called "Christian" president doing the bidding of the Arab/Islamic agenda, is a Muslim president flying under the radar with no one politically incorrect enough to stand up and say: "The emperor has no clothes!" Today, the United States has a president by the name of Mubarack Hussein Obama. Until proven otherwise I believe he is a Muslim.

My wife Rachel, who monitors Arab language broadcasts for Israel Radio, picked up a revealing statement on the "Round Table Show" on Egypt's Nile TV. Egyptian Foreign Minister Ahmed Abul Gheit said he had a one-on-one meeting with Obama, who told him that he was a Muslim, the son of a Muslim father and stepson of Muslim stepfather, that his half-brothers in Kenya were Muslims, and that he was sympathetic to the Muslim agenda. He asked the Arabs to show patience. Obama promised that once he overcame some domestic American issues (like healthcare reform), he would show the Muslim world how he would deal with Israel.

Pro-Arab, so-called Christian presidents are one thing. But how concerned should we be if the US President is a Muslim who is loyal to the Muslim agenda to isolate and weaken Israel? When the Palestinians talk about nothing but war with Israel and its annihilation, and the president of what was our strongest ally backs their demands for a state with Jerusalem as its capital, and adheres to the same faith, should we not be warning the American public?
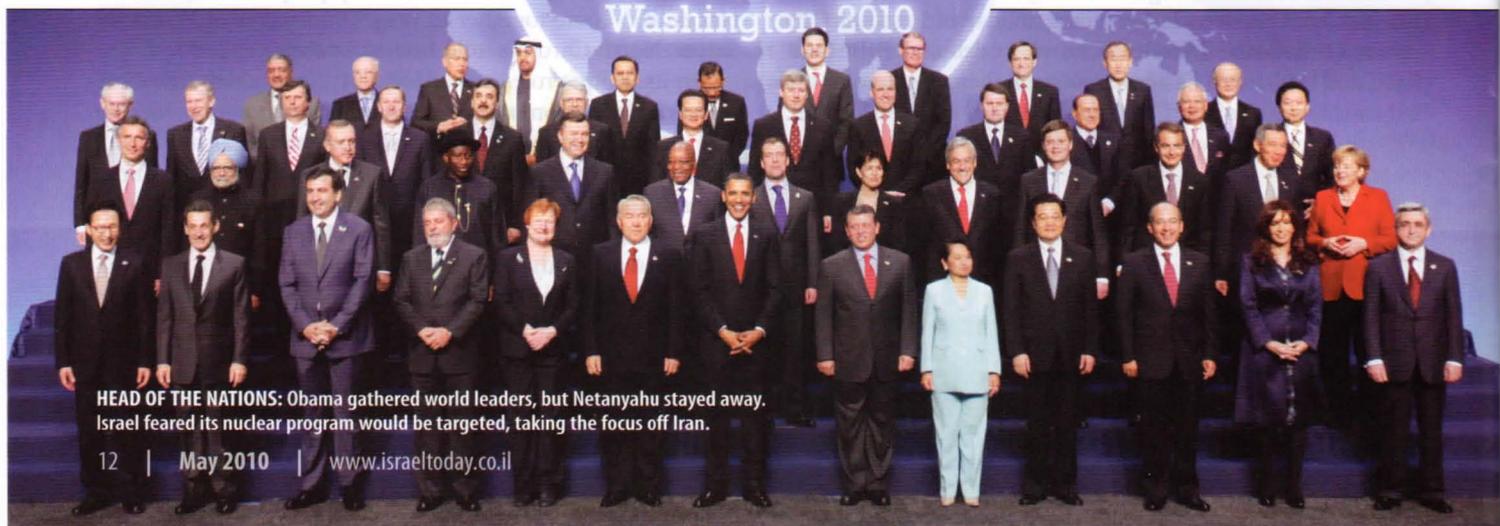

I can understand why Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu is so adamant not to offend Obama. But I think it would behoove us to work with the US Congress, three-quarters of which recently sent the Obama administration a letter demanding that it stop harassing Israel (see page 3). Congress still stands with Israel.

In addition, Obama is losing support among American Jews. While 78 percent of US Jews voted for him in the 2008 elections, a new poll shows that today, 48 percent are unhappy with his performance and only 42 percent still support him. Polls also show that more than 60 percent of American Christians support Israel.

It is time to create an awakening among our true brethren and allies in America: Congress, the Jews and the Christians. We must work together to thwart the emerging alliance between the US and the Arab-Islamic agenda. We must pray for an awakening among the Jews and a Christian revival for Israel's survival. ✡
